

IN THE ABSTRACT:

Please replace the originally filed abstract with the following amended abstract:

[[In a]] A delivery box system for delivering an article is providing, including a navigation device of an moving body receives for sending and receiving reservation requests and information, payment information, navigation execution ID information and position information of a particular related delivery box which are related to each other by from a central computer of a central management center. [[,]] The navigation device automatically calculates executes navigation information based on the navigation execution ID information, as well as guides the [[moving body]] deliveryman from the present position thereof to a moving destination where the particular related delivery box based on the position information of the related delivery box received from the central computer is installed. With the above arrangement, a route to a movement destination at which the article is delivered can be guided by a moving guide, an article-receiving person can easily reserve and use the delivery box, the security of the delivery box system can be improved by giving a reservation ID number inherent to each reserving action, a payment condition to the article can set as a part of article delivery conditions. Accordingly, there can be provided a delivery box system, by which delivery of an article can be completed on the condition that the acceptance of an article-receiving person is previously obtained as to the place where the article is delivered and who bears the usage fee of the delivery box, as well as a box-reserving method and a charging method making use of the delivery box system.